

Become the Listener!

At the Family Musical Mornings concert on January 12th, the mimes Doug and Maggie and you, the audience, will learn how to listen carefully to the music you hear. When you do, you will have a deeper and richer musical experience.

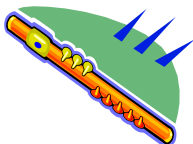

There is musical inspiration all around us.
Here are some activities to inspire you to create beautiful music...

Know Your Instruments

Knowing how the instruments of the orchestra sound and what they look like are very important ingredients in becoming a great listener. Click on the picture of the flute to go to the KidsMozart site and play a game that can help you to learn how all the instruments look and sound.

Then, once you know your instruments, click on the conductor's hands to test yourself with the instrument test quiz on the KidsMozart site. When you get all the instruments correct, you will hear a Mozart symphony performed!

Musical Sketchpad

You can create your own music online!

Click on the notes below to go to the Classics for Kids game website

(HINT: wait to let go of the note or rest until it turns green- you may want help from a parent or older brother or sister)

Bonus Activity!

Same or Different

Can you tell if the melodies you hear in this game are the same or different?

Click on the balloons to try the Creating Music comparing game. Once you are at the website, start the game by clicking on the polka dot balloon!

Music Match

Test your memory and your knowledge of musical terms. Click on the cards below to go to the Dallas Symphony Orchestra's online musical memory card game.
